

The leadership role demands that a person learn how to encourage people to work towards a goal and draw them into sharing the vision for reaching it.

In this seminar you'll discover:

- A simple definition of a leader and leadership.

Then:

- how to develop the 4 dimensions of an effective leader.
- your own strengths and weaknesses in your natural leadership style.
- how context can impact your ability to lead effectively
- the changes you need to make to better build on your abilities.
- truths that can strengthen your self image as a leader.

Personal Leadership Development is one of several seminars which are offered through LifeQuality International. Each seminar is led by one or more of our specially-trained facilitators.

Personal Leadership Development is a seminar with 6 exciting sessions which will help you become a more effective leader.

1. Leaders and their context.

You will be exposed to a simple model for effective leadership and answers to, “Why leaders are needed and what kind?” Using a recognized diagnostic tool you will identify your organization’s leadership needs.

2. Leadership Capital.

You’ll be introduced to the four sources of personal leadership integrity and a plan for developing them.

3. Physical Fitness.

Can you “go the distance” as a leader? You’ll be exposed to several ways to strengthen leadership stature and stamina.

4. Wisdom.

With the help of a “Personal Style Survey” you’ll deepen your self-understanding. You’ll discover some unique leadership strengths and weaknesses that you bring to your role and the situations which maximize your strengths.

5. Relational Ability.

You learn and begin to practice the art of adjusting your leadership style to meet the needs of others.

6. Centeredness.

You’ll be introduced to a plan for reaching your destiny as a leader, which lies beyond the simple scope of your leadership capacity.

At the end of the seminar, you’ll have an opportunity to integrate what you bring to your leadership context for increased overall effectiveness.”
