

“The football coach knows a lot about his job and the rules of the game because he was once a player. But in raising kids, it doesn’t help parents one bit that they were once kids themselves.” (Bill Cosby)

The parenting role is certainly not easy, especially today. Problems like these seem to hinder us in being effective:

- The quest for the “good life” and the “tyranny of the urgent”. These lead us more often than not to ask, “How much can the child handle?” rather than “What does my child need?”
- “When the foundations are destroyed...” Lack of good parental example leads to our repeating the same mistakes which we ourselves are the victims of.
- Our responses to our kids are already pre-determined by some kind of “parenting” training that we have received. This may lead to our doing things the right way, but not doing the right things.

Sharpening Your Parenting Skills is one of several seminars which are offered through LifeQuality International. Each seminar is led by one or more of our specially-trained facilitators.

Sharpening Your Parenting Skills Seminar

Quality parenting demands a trust culture built on trusted principles!

“Sharpening your parenting skills”—
4 sessions which can help you be more effective in your role as a mom or dad.

We build the seminar on the best selling book, How to Really Love Your Child by Dr. Ross Campbell & “Sharpening your People Skills”.

1. The foundation

Causes and cures for communication problems are the focus of this session. We then discuss how to build a good marriage as a foundation for family life as well as how to meet the challenges of single parenting.

2. Unconditional love

With the help of Ross Campbell’s book we will emphasize three methods that can help parents show love to their children. This session includes discussion and practical examples.

3. Discipline—training for life

We will identify what discipline is, what its aims are and how best to provide it.

4. Helping our children spiritually

Children look to their parents to provide that moral foundation and framework upon which to build their lives. How can we help our kids find that purpose in life which they long for?
